The “Disclosure Review” allows you to review any disclosure submissions that you have been assigned as a reviewer for.

For example, if you are in the supervisor role, we might assign you the disclosure of an employee that you supervise to make you aware of the employee’s potential conflict. However, this does not happen very often. Once it does, you will receive an email from us.

Start the module:

The screenshot shows the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center's Conflict of Interest and Commitment Disclosure System. The header includes the university logo and name, the system title, a main menu, and the user name 'Shen Wang'. The main content area is titled 'Disclosure Submission' and shows a dropdown menu for '2019 Conflict of Interest and Commitment Training ...'. Below this are navigation arrows and a section indicator 'Section 1 of 14'. A central box displays '2019 Conflict of Interest and Commitment Training and Disclosure Module' with a large green 'Main Content' overlay. A sidebar on the left shows a list of previous submissions for the same module, with options to 'Copy submission answers' and 'View Submission answers'.

You won't see this section if this is the first time you submit your disclosure using this system.

You will see this section if you have already submitted a disclosure, and the you have the option to copy the answers to the new form and verify, without having to type everything again.
