

GLOBAL HEALTH LECTURE SERIES

IMPROVING QUALITY & ACCESS TO MATERNAL HEALTHCARE IN AFRICA

FEATURING TAUSI SUEDI, M.P.H.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 2022

12:00 PM - 1:00 PM

ZOOM (REGISTER HERE)

Improving Quality & Access to Maternal Healthcare in Africa explores how systemic and cultural barriers to maternal care including maternal health, teen pregnancies, and quality of care can be addressed. This presentation will briefly elaborate on how such barriers have been addressed effectively to improve maternal health in Uganda and Tanzania.

Tausi Suedi, M.P.H. is a multilingual public health policy professional with over 15 years of international work experience. She has previously served as the Maternal, Child, and Adolescent Health Director at Childbirth Survival International, a global grassroots nonprofit. Currently, she is an Associate Global Scholar at the University of Pennsylvania Perelman School of Medicine. Through Ms. Suedi's scholarly engagement she promotes addressing challenges in low- and middle-income countries by elevating the social status of women and girls through political will, practical leadership, and increased investments in health and education.

This event is free and open to the public. No RSVP is required. For more information about the lecture series, please contact the Office of Global Health by email or visit our website.