DID YOU KNOW?
Texas Tech’s first honorary degree was conferred on Dr. Amon G. Carter of Fort Worth in 1930.

Students recognized for establishing scholarship endowment

TTUHSC audiology students involved with National Association of Future Doctors of Audiology were recently recognized with an appreciation luncheon.

These students raised funds to establish the National Association of Future Doctors of Audiology Scholarship Endowment in Audiology. Students say they look forward to seeing the endowment grow as additional gifts are contributed. Dean Paul Brooke, Ph.D., along with many of the School of Allied Health Sciences professors, honored the students, pictured below, for their efforts.

SERVICEplus at TTUHSC has been revised

New staff employees are expected to attend a SERVICEplus workshop within their first 90 days of employment as part of orientation to TTUHSC. In addition, staff employees who completed a SERVICEplus training workshop prior to 2005 are highly encouraged to refresh their customer service skills by attending one of the revised workshops. Non-staff employees are also welcome and encouraged to attend SERVICEplus training.

For more information on SERVICEplus, visit the Training and Staff Development Web site at http://www.ttuhsc.edu/hr/Training/.

REGIONAL NEWS

Paul L. Foster School of Medicine Founding Dean Jose Manuel de la Rosa, M.D., joined the two other leaders of El Paso’s major higher education institutions recently to deliver the first State of Higher Education address in El Paso. The other speakers, Richard Rhodes, Ph.D, president of El Paso Community College, and Diana Natalicio, Ph.D., president of The University of Texas at El Paso, spoke about three areas: the contributions the institutions are making to the community; how they view their relationships with the business community; and how the business community can help them. All three were thanked by having the star on the mountain lit that evening in their honor.

Tanis Hogg, Ph.D., has joined the faculty of the Paul L. Foster School of Medicine, TTUHSC at El Paso, as associate professor of biochemistry. Hogg previously was group leader and senior lecturer in Biochemistry at the University of Lübeck, the top Commission on Higher Education-ranked medical university in Germany.

Newsletter submissions should be made to the Office of Communications and Marketing, beth.phillips@ttuhsc.edu