WHAT IS GOLD RUSH?

Gold Rush is the TTUHSC Libraries' journal catalog. If the library has a journal either online or in print, it will be listed here.

USE Gold Rush when…

- You have the full citation of the article you’re looking for.
  (This includes article title, journal title, year published, volume/issue number, and page numbers.)
- You found an article through one of the library's databases, but did not see a full text link.

DO NOT use Gold Rush when…

- You are searching for a topic. Gold Rush is a citation tool only, not a full search engine.
- You only have the article title. Gold Rush requires either the journal title or PubMed I.D. number to find the citation in our holdings.

A Brief Overview
How to use Gold Rush

Start at the library website:

http://www.ttuhsc.edu/libraries

In the middle of the screen, there is a series of helpful tabs designed to streamline your information search.

Click the tab that says “eJournals”, and the Gold Rush tab will appear.

Gold Rush Page

This is the Gold Rush Page. From here, you can search the library's holdings by journal title, browse an alphabetical list of the journals available to you, or find more help on using Gold Rush in the form of tutorials or the “Ask A Librarian” link.

Journal Listing

This is what a journal listing in Gold Rush looks like. Along with information about any previous titles, there are links to the journal’s availability at the library in both our print and online collections.

Please note that the online resources have the dates available listed next to the resource link. Please check that we have the year you need before clicking on the resource link.
