Curricular Affairs

Weekly Update - September 3, 2013

Hope everyone had a great Labor Day!

The day after Labor Day is the less-celebrated twice-the-labor day, so I'm phoning it in a little with this week's blast. I will be presenting an overview of the structure of our curriculum at this week's new faculty orientation event, and part of that will be an overview of our curricular mapping activities. We didn't have a whole lot of time to review Ilios at the Faculty Retreat, so I am attaching a little tutorial of screenshots that I will go over again today, which will illustrate how the data load into Ilios works. This tutorial will be an Appendix in our ACPE report. I hope you can see from this tutorial how all your documentation from the standard syllabi feeds into this database, and begin to envision how we'll be able to call and run reports.

That's it for this week, enjoy/survive this 4-day week!
