A 66-year-old man has become increasingly short-tempered with his wife. He has diarrhea, weight loss, and weakness in the proximal muscles. He has atrial fibrillation and tachycardia. Which of the following is the most likely diagnosis?

(A) Congestive heart failure
(B) Cushing syndrome
(C) Hyperthyroidism
(D) Mitral valve prolapse
(E) Pheochromocytoma
- Lab findings associated with hyperthyroidism is ↓TSH (primary) or ↑TSH (secondary), ↑Total T₄, ↑Free T₄, & ↑T₃ uptake.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Keywords</td>
<td>Geriatrics, USMLE step exam, hyperthyroidism, Graves’ Disease.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
  EBSCO database verified by URAC; accessed from Mount Sinai Hospital, New York  