International Programs for Students

Students at TTUHSC may, with the approval of their school, pursue a global health elective or program abroad. These electives and programs foster the development of humanism and a lifelong commitment to service while highlighting the responsibility of healthcare professionals in addressing global health and social justice issues.

"When it comes to global Health, there is no 'them'...only us"

Global Health Council

The Global Health Lecture Series is designed to better educate TTUHSC faculty, students, and staff on the healthcare issues, concerns, and disparities impacting our world. The lecture series provides an opportunity for the exchange of information and knowledge resulting in a fuller understanding of the global challenges facing modern health care. A diverse array of topics is presented, highlighting social and economic trends related to health and encouraging practitioners to draw from the traditions and medical advancements of other countries.

Global Health Lecture Series

Healthcare professionals from various fields of study, nonprofit organizations, and leading researchers offer a unique perspective on topics ranging from surgery to toxicology and from Traditional Chinese Medicine to the treatment of drug and substance abuse. Presenters, having lived, served, or worked in various areas of the globe, share their valuable experiences with the TTUHSC and local community to promote a call to action.

The Global Health Lecture Series encourages the advancement of knowledge for positive change that impacts the world.

Global Perspectives Film Series

The goal of the Global Perspectives Film Series is to provide the TTUHSC and local community with information about global, national, and local health and social issues. Through the film series, attendees will gain knowledge about heritage celebrations, historic events, and current trends in health as well as receive insight into the customs, culture, and history of other countries and communities.

Global Health Library

In support of our goal to encourage a global perspective of healthcare needs and practices and to develop an awareness of cultural diversity, OGH maintains a unique collection of materials for faculty, staff, and students. The global health library provides scholarly and pedagogic resources which include books, periodicals, magazines, software, instructional material, videos, recorded presentations, dictionaries, and other publications. This collection offers a broad look at international cultures and customs as well as supports an awareness of the diverse yet interconnected world in which we live.
