Susie Park is a fourth-year student at TTUHSC's School of Pharmacy on the Abilene campus. She's involved with multiple professional organizations, including Pediatric Pharmacy Association (PPA), the Foundation of International Relief of Children (FIMRC), President's Select, and Phi Lambda Sigma. Her most recent medical relief trip was to Namwianga, Zambia to help with rural pop-up clinics.

There are certain ethical obligations we have as healthcare professionals when we choose to travel globally and care for the medically underserved in other countries. The goal of this presentation is to discuss a few aspects to consider when practicing abroad on medical relief trips.

Free lunch will be provided to the first 50 attendees (Lubbock campus only).
This event is free & open to the public. No RSVP is necessary.
