From The Very Beginning

The School of Medicine was created by the 61st Texas legislature in May, 1969 as a multi-campus institution serving 108 West Texas counties. Regional Academic Health Centers were also created in Amarillo, El Paso, Lubbock, and Odessa. Originally located in Thompson Hall, The School of Medicine and Nursing moved into the new Health Sciences Center after its construction. The School of Allied Health and Nursing were officially approved for funding by the 67th legislature in 1981, allowing all three schools to come together under one roof.

Anecdotes: Phil Brown's Spanish left a little to be desired. During his OB/Gyn clerkship, while repairing an episiotomy, he was concerned with his patient's well being. Thinking he was asking the patient if she had any pain, she kept screaming, "NO, NO, NO!" With each "No," he took another stitch. A nurse entering the room asked in aghast, "What are you saying?" He replied, "I was just asking the patient if she had any pain, 'tiene dinero?' and she keeps saying, 'NO, NO, NO.'"

While examining a mother in her ninth month of pregnancy, Mel Houser was determined to do a good exam to impress her attending. After the exam, Mel approached the attending with great concern, stating, "This woman is about to deliver! I can feel that the head is down!" Dr. Willis said he would be happy to examine the patient. During his exam, he turned to Mel and said, "Yes, you'd better put on the internal fecal monitor!"

Conference '88

This year the annual Texas Occupational Therapy Association conference was held in Lubbock. Judy Flagle was co-chairman of the conference with work subdivided into several committees. The OT students had the opportunity to actively participate in the conference as well. Not only did the students help at the conference, but they also had committees of their own. The co-chairmen for these committees were Mark Romack, Angie Parish and Donna McKnight. They were responsible for all student activities, housing for students from other schools, and publicity. This conference proved to be a lot of work but just as much fun.

"It's about time someone took a picture of me." (Judy Flagle)

"Shut-up Mark we'll discuss it later!" (Mark Romack, Jennifer Conners)

P.T. School Syndrome

You Know You're In Trouble When . . .

One of the many tasks of being a successful Physical Therapist entails being able to recognize clinical signs and symptoms and apply them to many different situations. Through out the past year a new syndrome had developed called the P.T. School Syndrome. The following are signs and symptoms of this devastating syndrome for which all should beware!

YOU KNOW you're in trouble when . . .

- *you get bored and feel lost without stress!
- *you realize the only date you had all summer long was your cadaver
- **you really do get hypnotized by Dr. Seliger's slides
- *you go to an "orientation" you're briefed on the fact that you are essentially 2 weeks behind, assigned 2 chapters to read and a test is announced to be taken the next day!
- *Slasher Seliger comes to your anatomy tank and wants in on the dissection action.
- *your name is no longer on your mailbox and your picture is gone from the picture board!
- *Sue is absent
- *Steven Guffey is thirty seconds late
- *you don't remember how to turn your TV on!
- *you see the sun come up and go down but miss everything in between
- **you have to ask for free crackers and jelly because you can't afford real food!
- *you see the words "class as needed" written in the lunch hour spot on your schedule

Friday afternoon

*you find yourself asking "What day is this?" several times a day!

*you look into the sunset and see a red nucleus and a substantia nigra

*you realize the concepts of free time and rest must have been myths

*Mark Bonscer is asked to operate the slide projector

*you begin to think there really is a muscle named the coracobrachioradialis.

PT School Promotes Comradeship Among Students

The pursuit of higher education begins very early in the academics career of health care professionals. Certain characteristics are inherently common to those pursuing medical careers and indirectly are responsible for the arrival of each individual to the point of entering professional school. From a variety of back ground, experiences and struggles emerged 22 people who had accepted the challenge of the physical therapy program. The morning of May 30, 1988 was not only the first day of classes but also the beginning of 22 professional careers.

Although the challenge of academic excellence was of foremost attention, those unwritten lessons which can only be learned through experience in the "school of life", were awaiting a certain amount of special attention as well. One of the major basis in any health care profession is the ability to effectively relate to people and to establish a variety of relationships. This is a very difficult goal to put pen to paper and to come up with measurable objectives; however, a year of PT school and comradeship had proven to be a vital training ground for this type of maturation. This observation is of course expressed through the eyes of one who has been in the "trenches" and as anyone who has experienced this knows it can only truly be understood by fellow comrades.

Remember When . . .

Remember When . . .

- 1) You thought one more thought would short-circuit your neurological pathways?
- 2) Contrary to professor popular opinion, we realized that no human form can write as fast as some professors talk.
- 3) You woke up one morning only to realize the entire summer had passed you by while your summer was spent with a cadaver.
- 4) You were overwhelmed at the complexity of the human body and that you had to understand it.
- 5) You caught yourself analyzing everyone's posture, gait and body composition through scientific eyes.
- 6) Your entertainment was defined by eating, breathing or sleeping.
- 7) Thirty minutes for lunch was a luxury.
- 8) Light reading consisted of recommended readings.
- 9) Stress became so normal you couldn't remember what relaxation was.
- 10) You considered buying an auxillary book bag.
- 11) Your loan officer started making house calls.
- 12) Extracurricular time was non-existent.
- 13) You finally understood the previous semester's material.
- 14) Your first day on your first clinical.
- 15) You knew every sacrifice was worth it!

Striving For Excellence

Those unique experiences that drew each of us closer together may be in the past but not forgotten. Although there were times when our obvious differences surfaced, there remained a common link which was stronger than even the most defiant differences. There were times to push a classmate to study, to pick up the pieces after an exhausting semester, to face an academic challenge with a sense of humor, to help a person understand one test does not a grade make, to help someone relax, to find someone to listen and to know someone truly understood.

Each person has brought unique qualities to the class of 1990 and has left an important mark on everyone's life. To endure the worst of times helps us to appreciate the best of times even more. Those good ole PT school days are perhaps the best of times. The cumulative efforts of the students as well as faculty contributed to the success of producing not only 22 professionals but a single classy class.

PT Students' ten most wanted list ...

- 1) A professor remote control including rewind, freeze frame and fast forward.
- 2) An official class lecture translator
- 3) A one-time fund raising project.
- 4) AHPT 5505 mandatory Student Recreation time
- 5) An official class clock that pauses for 10 minutes between classes
- 6) A self propelled official "important concept" hi lighter.
- 7) Mandatory sentence of cleaning out cadaver tanks to anyone who flippantly says, "I know exactly what you're going through."
- 8) Students designated stress holidays.
- 9) Classroom temperature control.
- 10) Effective air freshener for formaldehyde.

Getting Into The Community

The physical therapy profession is not limited to the clinical setting. In contrast PT's are going into the public setting. The SPTA encourages young professionals to begin this relationship early. As an organization we have been involved in community service projects this past years. The first was assisting with The MDA telethon by answering phones and taking donations as well as presenting money that was raised.

Another project was the Halloween bowl-a-thon for MDA. Guest appearances ranged from the three blind mice, an elderly couple, and a skunk and a baseball game vendor. The costumes, however, did not affect the bowling scores. Top bowlers as well as top pledge recipients were given trophies. The other fall project brought our class to the state school for a Christmas party for some of the clients. Events included a puppet show, refreshments and group activities. A gleam of satisfaction could be seen in both the clients and students as the true spirit of Christmas cheer was shared during the holiday season.

The spring semester brought the annual special Olympics and an opportunity to see up close every day courage. Everyone involved came out a winner and not just the one to cross the finish line first. The true prize is seeing the satisfaction on the participants' faces and knowing your little part is immensely important. The spring also brought an opportunity to participate in helping to make the life of a terminally ill child a little brighter. A car wash to raise money for the wish-in-the works Foundation provided us the occasion to help. Even with a busy schedule these projects helped to broaden our spectrum of our community opportunities.

Nursing Students

May 5, 1989

Dear TTUHSC Community:

In this year of special celebration, we have the opportunity to depict our history and to project the future. From a small beginning 20 years ago when Governor Preston Smith (Lubbock) signed legislation creating a medical school in West Texas, a major multi-disciplinary health sciences center has emerged.

During 1987-88 students and faculty from each of the three schools have benefitted from the presence of the Health Sciences Center. More importantly, citizens in West Texas are the direct beneficiaries of this major force in health care. Linkages throughout West Texas have brought a vast geographical area into close proximity with the latest advances in health care and the solid traditions that have made each of the professions significant in improving quality of life.

The School of Nursing through its faculty and students has contributed to this year's history. Faculty, students and graduates also are the molders of the future. Using the concept of Reintegration, faculty and graduates of the School of Nursing impact nursing at the local, regional, state and national level. Making the future better is a constant goal of the School and the Health Sciences Center. As we all reflect on this year of progress, we remain committed to the future, what it holds and how we will help to mold it.

Sincerely,

Teddy L. Langford, R.N., Ph.D., C.N.A.A.

Men of Wisdom.

And they said we weren't serious.

Happiness is graduation.

A second profession?

The lady behind the scenes.

Look out Willie.

Seeing is believing!

Aren't you suppose to kiss Sleeping Beauty?

Special Thanks To:

- Vonda Somerville for all her help and patience.
- Jim Hill for his "guidance".
- Jane Carter for identifying pictures.
- Donna McKnight and Polly Fowler for hard work and late nights. Answer my phone much, Donna?
- Janet Hamilton for her patience when I should have been "somewhere else". Does this mean I have to study now? Sorry about the stress levels.
- Kristen Klenk, I can't say enough. What would I have done without you? We're actually finished! You did a great job of organizing pictures.
- Ken Brantley for taking so many pictures and helping out so much when we needed it on the faculty section. You're a busy guy, and I appreciate you volunteering your time when we were in a jam.
- Tracie Updike — early to bed, early to rise . . . just don't wake me up! Pizza on the house, courtesy of Dr. Updike. Someday, Maybe. Thanks for all of your help. I've really enjoyed working with you. And Tracie, please don't crop your face.
- Mark Romack for alphabetizing student pictures, typing copy, running errands to the yearbook room, putting up with me and Tracie (thanks for the Chinese food), and helping me keep my sanity.
- Mona Harper and her crew of PT's for putting together a great section right before a major Neurology exam.
- Roberta Hinshaw for your hard work on your sections. (Karen too!).
