December Graduation

Due to the growth of the Health Sciences Center, we now have two graduation ceremonies, one in December and one in May. With the May 1995 graduation, the institution now boasts 3,059 alumni, including physicians, scientific researchers, nurses and allied health professionals practicing in nearly every state of the union and several foreign countries. Of particular pride is the fact that a majority of these graduates have chosen to remain in Texas to serve the health care needs of the State of Texas.

The Journey That Begins With A Step

by Guy A. Priel

It is said that a journey begins with a single step. For graduates of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, Saturday May 20, 1995 marked the beginning of a journey for some and the end of a journey for others.

"The graduates in this room today represent the future quality of health care," said John Sims, Vice-Chairman of the Board of Regents.

The men and women graduating at this time had a right to be happy and proud, he stated. They had jumped every hurdle and met every challenge which faced them and had reached the point where they were ready to make a difference in the medical field.

"This year's graduation marks a milestone event in the history of this institution," Sims said.

This year's graduating class broke the 3,000 mark for number of graduates. It was also the first year a student graduated from the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences. It was also the year when they had a founding dean present, the founding dean of the School of Pharmacy. This year was also the last time there would be a bachelor degree given in the field of physical therapy.

"Where there is love of man there is also love of art," said Texas Tech President Robert Lawless, quoting Hippocrates.

The only way anyone can be their best after graduation is to care for themselves, he stated.

"The graduates in the room today will face many challenges and changes," he said. "The future of health care is changing and these men and women will be at the heart of the changes."

The graduates of this year's class will also be on, the forefront of new discoveries, new technologies and new diseases, Lawless said.

"These graduates are not finishing their education today," he stated. "Education never stops. Education, talent and genius are not enough to make you a success."

Being a success involves four major cornerstones, Lawless continued.

"The four cornerstones of success are self care, compassion, leadership, and not compromising," he stated.

Compassion means being able to listen, touch, laugh and cry, he said.

"These graduates today need to be leaders in their profession as well as ambassadors of good," Lawless said. "They should never leave any room for compromise."

Leaders of the future of health care will be made up of several major ingredients: education, talent and genius, he continued.

"It makes me proud to know that my future is in your hands," he concluded.

Dr. Lawless was the speaker at the 1995 HSC graduation in May.

"The faculty and programs here at Tech are truly outstanding and will always have a fond place in my memory." --Trina Cormack, Elizabethtown, Penn., School of Medicine.

School Daze

The students at the Health Sciences Center are a diverse group of individuals. Due to the serious nature of the environment and the professional level of the programs, our students tend to crack the books and buckle down once school begins but...we did find that our students do find time for fun and maybe even relaxation. Here's a look at the lighter side of some serious students.
