Journal Articles

The Library has journals in either full-text, electronic format or in paper format, depending on the specific title and the publication date.

There are 2 main approaches to finding journal articles in the Library:

- BY SUBJECT: To compile a list of articles on a specific subject, use one of the many databases we have, such as PubMed, OVID or MD Consult. As a convenience, most of our databases have links to the full-text of at least some of the articles — this is not a complete linking to our electronic journals, but can be an efficient way to get to some of the full-text articles you need.
- BY JOURNAL TITLE: If you have the name of a specific journal that you want to look for (either a specific article that you need or if you want to browse a journal), use one of the following resources:
 -  GOLD RUSH is where you search, by journal title, to see if the Libraries own a specific journal. If we do, Gold Rush is the best, most comprehensive place to get links to our full-text, electronic journal subscriptions. These links are listed toward the bottom of the journal title information, under the heading “Full Text Resources Online.” Pay attention to the details under “Dates Available” — this shows the years we have available electronically.
 - ONLINE CATALOG gives details on those journals owned, in paper copy, in the 4 TTUHSC libraries. If you need a copy of an article from one of the other locations, you may request it through our Interlibrary Loan service and we will get it for you.
